 NOW ON SHELVES
 OF U. S. LIBRARY

Operations hampered by continual changes in personnel, says Librarian.

The number of volumes in the Library of Congress is now almost to the 3,000,000 mark and other accessions have brought existing collections to more than 4,500,000 separate items, according to the annual report of the Librarian, issued yesterday.

The operation of the Library in dealing with this mass of material continues to be embarrassed because of constant changes in personnel resulting from inadequate salaries, the report states.

The collections now comprise 2,918,256 books and pamphlets, 170,000 maps and charts, 919,041 volumes and pieces of music, 424,783 prints, and many thousands of manuscripts which have not been counted. Erection of a new bookstack in the northeast courtyard is asked.

During the year twenty assistants resigned from the reading-room staff and the average length of service of the assistants is but little more than twelve months, due to low salaries, the report states.

Changes in the catalogue division included those of five cataloguers and revisers in the service from ten to twenty-one years. The classification division lost, through resignation, fifteen of a staff of nineteen assistants.

ARE YOU A GOOD FELLOW?

If So, Today Is the Day For You to Sign Up and Guarantee a Merry Christmas For Someone Less Fortunate Than Yourself.

Why not take out some Merry Christmas insurance today? The best policy is to become a Good Fellow and take care of a poor kiddie or a sick or aged adult who would have a sad and dreary Yuletide but for your intercession. The premium you pay—the cost of a few toys or trinkets—is negligible in comparison with the perpetual endowment of happy memories of a good deed done and a life brightened.

Each mail brings to the Good Fellow Department of The Washington Times a large number of pitiful appeals from poor children and other needy persons asking Santa Claus not to forget them on Christmas Day. It is up to the Good Fellows to see that old Kris Kringle does not forget them.

A Formula for Joy.

The Washington Times asks only one of the clearing houses for the business of Santa Claus. It does not want to collect a fund, but it does want to bring together on Christmas morn those who are in need and those who are willing to share their Yuletide happiness with some one less fortunate. This is not a charity, but a duty.

Authorities on happiness will tell you that the only way of being truly happy is to make someone else happy. No better formula for Christmas joy could be imagined than that of becoming a Good Fellow and taking a poor kiddie or an unfortunate adult under your wing.

The Washington Times has a long list of such needy persons. Why not sign up as a Good Fellow today? Creed Is Appealing.

The Good Fellow creed is so simple that it is bound to make a universal appeal. It is:

Neither you nor I get anything out of this except the feeling that we've saved some soul from sorrow on Christmas morning.

In other words, the Good Fellow is a joy dispenser who guarantees to distribute cheer and happiness irrespective of class, creed, sect or the cause of the distress he finds.

It is no concern of the Good Fellow's what condition is responsible for the fact that children or the ill or aged face a cheerless Christmas. All that interests him is that the condition exists, and that he will alleviate it by playing Santa Claus to the family.

If you believe Christmas was intended as a season of joy and happiness for the poor as well as the rich, that makes you a Good Fellow. It then remains for you to determine just how strongly you will manifest your belief—whether you will take under your wing one or several families and guarantee them a merry Christmas.

It does not take a lot of money to be a Good Fellow, but it does require will and a feeling of sympathy for those less fortunate than yourself. In one case a little 25 cent doll, or a box of candy, or a bright red cap, or a basket of fruit may serve the purpose of bringing the Christmas spirit into a home that otherwise would be cheerless and sad on Christmas morning. In another instance a pair of gloves, an overcoat, a pair of shoes, or any other article of wearing apparel—which you already have and therefore will not have to buy—may mean the difference between a miserable Christmas and a merry Christmas.

Straight Line Plan.

It is for each Good Fellow to determine for himself how many he will care for and what he will give. This is a straight line plan—the shortest distance between two points, the heart of the giver and the home of the recipient.

The Washington Times will provide the names of needy families and the Good Fellows will do the rest. With the names and addresses of the families, the Good Fellow can make personal visits, determine the needs and decide how he will meet them.

The Washington Times will accept no money or other contributions. It wants the Good Fellows to get the joyous thrill of planning Christmas for the family or families, buying the Christmas gifts and personally distributing them on Christmas morning. The Washington Times has made no provision for distributing the gifts because such an arrangement would rob the Good Fellows of the greatest pleasure incident to the plan—that of hearing the laughter and shouts of joy of the children in the families adopted for the day.

Names Are Grouped.

Good Fellows who send in their names to The Washington Times will be promptly furnished with the names and addresses of as many persons as they wish to take care of on Christmas morning. The names of the needy families have been grouped according to the sections of the city—northwest, northeast, southwest, and southeast. Each man or woman intending to become a Good Fellow should signify the section in which he prefers to take care of a family.

It is the business of the Good Fellows to see that not a single home in

You are the Mother of our Bond—

YOU may not have been one of those thousands of women who brought us their freshly-baked home-made bread in order to show us how they wanted their bread to be made—

Perhaps you discovered only recently how pure and homelike Bond Bread is.

Perhaps you may be one of the few who haven't discovered it at all.

But, just the same, you are the mother of our Bond. It is you—the woman who knows good bread—the woman who knows what should go into the dough in order to make good bread—it is you who have inspired the goodness of Bond Bread.

And, above all, it is you—the head of the family—who inspired the Bond which gives Bond Bread its name.

When we say in our Bond, "To whom it may concern," we mean you. When we guarantee that Bond Bread contains only the very purest ingredients—finest flour—whole milk—real lard—granulated sugar—table salt—and fresh compressed yeast—we have your picture before us.

It is more than a cold legal Bond that we give you—it is a personal Bond—a personal pledge—a personal contract by which we obligate ourselves to you.
